Comprehension for Independent Readers Middle: Literal - Inferential - Evaluative Edward Connor

Comprehension for independent readers - Middle offers a range of writing genres and activities to develop the skills required for comprehension. The aim is to provide pupils with the opportunity to work independently to extract information from different texts and to demonstrate the different levels of comprehension: literal, inferential and evaluative. Most units in the book focus on the literal, inferential and evaluative comprehension of a particular text type or the use of a specific figure of speech. Appreciation of the latter is necessary for the inferential and evaluative levels of comprehension. A number of units are puzzle-based and focus on the understanding of vocabulary and the skill of scanning as well as extracting information from text types such as time lines.
