Red Light, Green Light, Splat: Splatter and Friends Melissa Moraja

Next time there is a rainbow, look close because you may just get a glimpse of seven colorful, friendly creatures and their dog sneaking a peak at you! And if you are lucky-SPLAT!-you may even get to meet one. Swish! Swoosh! Splat-a-tat-tat! Splatter and Friends set off on another adventure splatting from a rare upside down rainbow inches from where Lionar, the King of Chimney Rock, was sitting. Lionar not only made new friends, but he also discovered that everyone and everything has color. Red Light! Green Light! Splat! also includes three games your children can play at home. Splatter and Friends is an educational children's book series that promotes creative learning, self-awareness, and the secret recipe for silliness. The color of Splatter and each of his friends symbolizes personality traits. Determine which character your child identifies with and encourage them to express their full splaterific color! PLEASE be aware that the formatting (font, images) of this book may appear differently depending on the eReader. Some eReaders require you to click on the text to be able to read it. Also all Splatter and Friends stories were written and illustrated by a mom with the help of her children. (Target age preschool and kindergarten)
